ENSCHEDÉ IS UNIQUE

Real beauty is found within. This age-old wisdom is definitely true for Enschede. The city survived the rise and fall of the textile industry, no less than three huge city fires, a few dozen bombings in the Second World War and a devastating fireworks disaster on 13 May 2000. Boundless resilience made Enschede into the city it is today: bustling with life.

One of the major reasons for its lively character is the student life. Approximately 26.000 students live in Enschede, who are connected to the University of Twente, the applied university, conservatory and art academy. They also give Enschede an international feel. More than 160 nationalities live alongside each other here.
